

SAPIENTIA COVID-19 UPDATE

March 23, 2020

Re: We're all in this together

Clients, colleagues and friends:

In the midst of important national, state, and local health concerns regarding coronavirus 2019, we are all having to evaluate how we do business and how adaptable we are.

Since starting Sapientia Law Group (almost nine years ago to the day), our firm has prioritized providing quality legal services while utilizing flexible work schedules, teleworking arrangements, and collaborative case management. There are many reasons why these fundamental strategies have benefitted our clients and our minority- and women-owned company over the years, but that could not be more true today given the challenges our society and the business world is currently managing.

Like many businesses, Sapientia is doing its part to practice social distancing and assist with community containment mitigation strategies by closing our physical office as of Wednesday, March 18th. With only a slight pivot, our entire team remains fully active in client matters and ongoing litigation. All of our lawyers and staff will observe "Online Workdays" for the immediate future; all are equipped to carry on with our ordinary business, communications, court hearings, conferences, and meetings remotely. Please continue to contact any of our team members by phone or email as usual.

As Albert Einstein once said, "You can't solve a problem on the same level that it was created. You have to rise above it to the next level." We are confident that the challenges and circumstances we are all facing will result in all of our businesses rising to the next level and innovating further.

We are all in this together. Please know that we are here to help in any way you need.

Sincerely,
