On August 5, 2023, Robin Wolpert of Sapientia Law Group, PLLC, was sworn in as President of the National Conference of Bar Presidents (NCBP) at the NCBP Annual Meeting in Denver, Colorado.

Founded in 1950, NCPB is dedicated to building better bar leaders who strengthen the legal profession, help protect the rule of law, and promote justice within their communities and their bar associations. Its members are bar leaders and organizations from state, metropolitan and affinity bars from across the country.

Robin Wolpert was recently sworn in as the new President of the National Conference of Bar Presidents.

“Leading the NCBP is one of the greatest honors of my career,” Wolpert said. “Our mission is to make the difference in the success of bar leaders and organizations from across the country. This year we’ll be building a next generation bar. That means putting well-being and belonging front and center. We want to create a thriving profession and the experience of inclusion. And we will be mobilizing to address the singular challenge of our lifetime—promoting the rule of law and democracy. Lawyers have a unique responsibility to act and it’s urgent we do so.”

Robin Wolpert is a highly respected business litigator, appellate practitioner, and white-collar criminal defense attorney. Robin uses her unique blend of government, private-sector, and in-house experience to address legal, policy, and leadership challenges for a wide variety of clients.

Wolpert received her B.A. from Colby College and her J.D. from Cornell Law School. Before becoming a lawyer, Robin earned her Ph.D. in political science from the University of Chicago. Her areas of expertise include constitutional law, judicial politics, cognitive and behavioral economics, and political and organizational psychology.

Always passionate about public service, Wolpert is a national leader and public speaker on democracy, ethics, lawyer well-being, implicit bias, and diversity, equity and inclusion.
